

I really enjoy my xm radio and it's ability to provide me with un interrupted service while driving or in my truck waiting to be loaded, there is nothing more frustrating than having to scan for a radio station every hour or so and that annoying static and fade in and out, not to mention it's safer to be able to ljust set a station and drive than keep messing with the radio trying to find a station , I think xm should offer some selected local programing, to the subscriber that he or she requests, people that don't travel for a living don't understand how attached a driver becomes to certian radio shows and personalities, so leave xm alone and direct your energy to something more productive like supporting our troops.
